When do I go to hospital?

During your treatment, the doctor decides on the medical necessity of hospital treatment and then issues a referral. In emergencies (e.g. accident, heart attack...) the hospital/emergency department can be visited directly without admission.

Which hospital can I go to?

As a rule, your attending physician will recommend a suitable hospital. However, you generally have a free choice of hospital among all accredited hospitals. In case ambulance is needed, please call 112.

What do I need for hospital treatment?

The health card and, if necessary, a referral. In the case of planned longer-term hospital stays, it goes without saying, that you should also bring along your daily necessities.

Do I have to pay for the hospital treatment myself?

Only the co-payment of 10,00 € per day (max. 28 days per year) must be borne by the patient. For inpatient deliveries no co-payment is required.

Attention! If the chief physician's treatment, double room, single room, family room or other additional services are agreed in writing, this is a private contract between the patient and the hospital. These costs cannot be reimbursed by the BKK.

If necessary, such additional options can be covered by private insurance companies. Further information on this can be found e. g. from our partner, Barmenia.
